Spring Hill College
Celebrating 50 Years of Integration

In September 1954, eight African Americans quietly joined the student body at Spring Hill College and, without hysteria and unnecessary disturbance of any kind, changed the campus forever. Included among them were Mary Andrea Abrams '57, Patricia Blackmon '58, Robert Buchanan '57, Elbert LaLande '57, Cecilia Mitchell '58, Julia Ponquinette '58 and Fannie Motley, who entered in the spring of 1955 and who would become the College's first African-American graduate a year later. As Spring Hill College commemorates the 50th anniversary of integration this academic year, we honor the spirit and courage of these first students and we celebrate those who have helped shape the richly diverse College community we share today.

Right in the middle of exams, Jan. 21, the quiet w broken by a student on the third floor of Mobile Hall. Seei a few men getting out of cars and taking beams from a truc he shouted through the halls, "The Klan is here!" A h prefect dashed out and campused the student for yelling.

But other students took up the cry and began pouring out of their rooms. Prefects and students stamped out of the halls. The would-be carpenters dropped the sledge-hammer and abandoned the cross on the ground. There were an estimated twenty-five cars on the campus. The cross was abandoned near the statue of the Blessed Virgin in the circle in front of Mobile Hall.

Boys headed for the gate after the cars. A prefect grabbed the cross and hammer. One student

Spring Hill Welcomes Arun Gandhi

Spring Hill College welcomed Arun Gandhi, grandson of Mohandas Gandhi and President of the M.K. Gandhi Institute for Nonviolence, on Thursday, October 28th, 2004 for panel discussion on the philosophy of nonviolence.

Gandhi illustrated the role of nonviolence in the problem of racial intolerance in America and argued that the United States has not been able to accomplish successful integration. Gandhi has said that no matter how many laws requiring integration are enacted, true racial understanding and respect will only occur if the people of the United States desire it to be so.

September 2004:

Hurricane Ivan

Hurricane Ivan formed around September 4th, 2004. After only a couple days in the Atlantic, Ivan strengthened to a category 4 hurricane. By the time it reached Jamaica, Ivan was a Category 5 hurricane. Ivan moved into the Gulf of Mexico, headed for the Gulf Coast. Spring Hill College reacted quickly, cancelling classes from September 14th to the 20th. The majority of campus taped their windows and left town. Spring Hill's campus, luckily, sustained little serious damage beyond having to remove some trees and revise the fall academic calender.

During its life, Ivan created 165 mile per hour winds. It caused over $16 billion in damages and was responsible for 92 direct fatalities accross its path, which included Jamaica, Cuba, Alabama, Florida, Texas, Louisiana, and many areas along the east coast.

"All human activity takes place within a culture and interacts with culture. For an adequate formation of a culture, the involvement of the whole man is required, whereby he exercises his creativity, intelligence, and knowledge of the world and of people. Furthermore, he displays his capacity for self-control, personal sacrifice, solidarity and readiness to promote the common good."
